INCREASING LGBTQ WORKPLACE INCLUSION TOGETHER

GREATER WESTERN SYDNEY SUMMIT

Pride in Diversity is the national peak body focused on LGBTQ workplace inclusion, engaging with over 300 organisations who employ over 3 million employees around Australia. Our members have requested we take the conversation about LGBTQ workplace diversity and inclusion to Greater Western Sydney.

The summit is open to all employers and employees – including state and local governments, small business and community employers in Greater Western Sydney. The purpose of the summit is to open dialogue with organisations and their teams on LGBTQ inclusion within workplaces, and discuss challenges and opportunities, including the intersection of people of faith and multicultural communities.

Hosted at Western Sydney University (Kingswood Campus) on Thursday 29 April and chaired by Pride in Diversity and our patron, CEO Business Council of Australia and Chair of Western Sydney Aerotropolis, Jennifer Westacott AO, the Summit presents a series of events focusing on awareness and enablement. It will include discussion on critical elements of LGBTQ inclusion with the intent of addressing questions about these topics for organisations, leaders, HR professionals and employee networks in Greater Western Sydney.
